Kaye/Bassman Academic Food & Beverage practice is devoted to the recruitment of food and beverage professionals in leading academic institutions and universities. The food and beverage function within academic institutions requires a specialized set of skills that can be challenging to find. We understand and excel at identifying, attracting and hiring professionals with the skills necessary to thrive in this specialized environment.

Our expertise stems from over 22 years of experience in the food & beverage industry in both CPG and QSR. This, paired with our Academic Leadership team's longstanding success in recruiting top talent within academic institutions, allows us to deliver a powerful, integrated search capability. Together, we help universities and colleges secure leaders who shape the future of academic dining and food sciences—ranging from directors of campus dining services and cafeteria leadership to deans of food science programs and other high-level roles that bridge education and industry.

Through the flexibility of our Client Focused Search® approach, which provides proper alignment of expectations based on the service level and urgency our client requires, and our Market Mastery model of proactively developing candidate relationships in core functional disciplines ahead of need, Kaye/ Bassman's Academic Food & Beverage Practice has the experience, process and tools to help our clients tap into the strategic leadership and tactical talent they need.
